Passage III

She dreamed of becoming a writer one day, but she didn't think it was possible. She often thought to herself, "If only I had the time to write a book, I _____ (become) a writer." But one day, Sarah's teacher assigned a writing project for the class and it was then when she realised that if she set aside a little bit of time every day to work on her writing, she _____ (turn) her dream into reality. So she began to write every day after school for a short period of time. She wrote about her adventures, her friends, and her family. And as she wrote, her stories started to take shape, and before she knew it, she had written an entire novel. She showed it to her teacher, who was impressed with her work and encouraged her to submit it to a publisher. If she _____ (not have) that teacher that gave her an assignment, she would have never started writing. After a few rejections, one publisher finally accepted her book, and soon it was being read by people all over the world. Sarah realised that the key to achieving her dreams was persistence and dedication. If she _____ (give up) after the first rejection, she _____ (not become) a published author. But because she kept going, she was able to make her dream a reality.

From that day on she wrote many books, and became a well-known author, who now has her own readers and fans. If she _____ (not believe) in herself and her work, she would never have reached that level of success. But also, if she _____ (spend) her free time reading, she wouldn't have developed the passion for writing.

Now, if she _____ (invite) to participate in a book fair, she will certainly go. When she receives a good review, she _____ (be) very happy. If she _____ (sell out) all her books, she will consider writing a new one. And if she _____ (win) an award, she will be over the moon!
